Your Guide to Foreign Vaccination Certificates

To qualify as fully vaccinated for travel to Australia, you must have a paper or digital certificate showing that your vaccination is approved or recognised by Australia's Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA) ↗. Paper and digital certificates are equally acceptable.

If you were vaccinated overseas, your vaccination certificate must be:

Issued by a national or state/provincial-level authority, or an accredited vaccination provider

Written in English (or accompanied by a certified translation*)

* A certified translation must include the stamp or membership number of a professional translation association. The entire certificate must be translated, not just part of it.

INCLUDE:

Your name as it appears in your passport

 If the name on your vaccination certificate is different from the name on your passport, you will need to show evidence that you are the certificate's rightful holder (for example, a driver's licence or a marriage certificate).

Your date of birth or passport number or national identity number

 If your certificate contains only a national identity number, and that number doesn't appear on your passport, then you will need to show your national identity card that matches the identity number and name on your vaccination certificate.

The brand name of the vaccine you received, and

The date of each dose or the date you were fully vaccinated (i.e. received the final dose)
